The name 'kokaku' comes from 'pure(?) crane,' because cranes are actually white in colour, and pepper is used to express the purest white colour, in which lies the crux, and cranes are said to be able to live up for a thousand years, which is how 'sennto' comes about

In the beginning I wanted to make him the type of character that would be up for spicy food anytime and anywhere because sweet foods were already taken, so that was the direction we went.

His entire body gives of the impression of red.

The original character was based on idol 'A'-san...but in the end you can't even see who it was based on...

It should have been a handsome and cool Kokaku, but he became a noisy and loud-mouthed character
